Wall Street edges lower ahead of critical inflation data

U.S. benchmarks closed lower for a second straight session Tuesday as investors turned cautious ahead of the July CPI report. The S&P 500 fell 0.3%, the Nasdaq Composite dropped 0.6% on weakness in large-cap tech, and the Dow lost 0.3%.

Markets awaited the inflation print, expected to show 0.1% m/m headline growth and a 3.4% annual pace.

Alphabet shares fell 3.8%, their fourth decline in five sessions, as investors reacted to the company's reshuffling of its internal AI units.

Intel priced a public offering of 210.5 million shares at $95 apiece, upsizing the deal from $15 billion to $20 billion. The offering, set to today — one of the largest capital raises in the chip sector this year.

Oil extended its volatile run amid stalled talks over reopening the Strait of Hormuz. Brent has surged to nearly $90.

Iran maintained the strait would stay closed until its demands are met, even as a senior Pakistani minister said Tuesday the U.S. and Iran were nearing "some sort of arrangement" — a rare note of optimism amid otherwise hardening rhetoric on both sides.

Energy stocks gained on the rally, while refining margins spiked, pointing to a tightening downstream market.

The Indian rupee weakened for the second consecutive session yesterday, depreciating by 14 paise to close near 95.44. The decline was driven by weakness across Asian currencies and rising crude oil prices. Heightened risk aversion amid geopolitical uncertainty continued to exert pressure on the domestic currency. However, the rupee's decline remained relatively contained despite the surge in oil prices, supported by intervention from the central bank.

Fitch Ratings affirmed India's sovereign rating at BBB-, the lowest investment-grade level, while retaining a stable outlook. The agency cited robust growth prospects and stable external financing conditions, but flagged elevated government debt, weak structural metrics and potential fiscal spending pressures amid rising youth unemployment.

The central government's net direct tax collection rose 23% YoY to Rs 8.11 trillion as of August 10, supported by strong growth in non-corporate tax and STT receipts. The collection represents nearly one-third of the FY27 target of Rs 26.97 trillion, despite a slower rise in refunds.

The Nifty remained under pressure throughout the session yesterday due to a sharp rise in crude oil prices on geopolitical concerns.

Having declined more than 300 points from its recent peak of 24,774, the Nifty has moved closer to its 200-day DEMA support at 24,384.

A decisive close below this level could drag the index towards the next support at 24,000. On the upside, 24,630 and 24,750 are likely to act as key resistance levels.

Indian equities are set for a mildly positive note on conducive Asian cues.

Key Events

US small-business sentiment rises to 11-month high in July, labor shortages a worry

U.S. small-business sentiment increased to an 11-month high in July amid a surge in the share of owners reporting plans to boost hiring, suggesting that last month's slump in nonfarm payrolls was probably temporary.

The National Federation of Independent Business said on Tuesday its Small Business Optimism Index rose 2.4 points to 99.8 last month, the highest level since August 2025 and surpassing its 52-year average of 98.0.

The survey's uncertainty index, however, increased 2 points to 91 amid a rise in owners saying they were not sure this was a good time to expand. Owners were also uncertain about capital expenditure plans.

Brazil inflation eases to 4.4% in July, opens door for rate cut

Brazil's inflation rate fell to 4.4% year-over-year in July, down from 4.6% in June, bringing price pressures back within the central bank's target range and creating room for a potential 25 basis point interest rate reduction in September. The July reading matched forecasts and marked a three-month low for the country's inflation rate. The return of inflation to within the central bank's target range may allow policymakers to proceed with their monetary easing cycle at the next policy meeting scheduled for September.

US existing home sales slightly surpass forecasts

In the latest assessment of the U.S. housing market, existing home sales have shown a modest increase, providing a glimpse of stability amid ongoing economic fluctuations. The actual number of existing residential buildings sold in the previous month was reported at 4.06 million, slightly surpassing the forecasted figure of 4.05 million. This marginal uptick suggests a steady demand in the housing sector, despite broader economic uncertainties.

API reports significant rise in US crude oil inventories

The American Petroleum Institute (API) recently released its weekly report on US crude oil inventories, revealing a substantial increase in stock levels. According to the latest data, crude oil inventories surged by 9.072 million barrels. This figure notably surpasses market expectations, as analysts had forecasted a decrease of 0.500 million barrels. The considerable rise in crude inventories diverges sharply from both market predictions and the previous week's data. Last week's report indicated an increase of 2.690 million barrels, which already suggested a rise in stock levels.

Chart with Interesting Observations

U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve Drops to 40-Year Lows

- The U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) from 1985 through recent years, highlighting a dramatic decline to 304.809 million barrels—the lowest inventory level seen in over four decades. After climbing to a peak near 700 million barrels in the mid-2000s and maintaining a relatively high reserve for over a decade, crude oil stocks plummeted sharply following massive emergency drawdowns initiated around 2020. This steep drop underscores the scale of strategic inventory releases deployed to mitigate global supply disruptions and energy price spikes, leaving national oil stockpiles significantly depleted compared to historical standards.
