Tame US CPI eases rate-hike fears, lifts risk appetite

US headline CPI rose 3.4% YoY in July, matching consensus, cooling from June's 3.5%. Core CPI held at 2.5% YoY, also in line with forecasts. The soft print led markets to pare back bets on an aggressive Fed move at the September meeting, with gold rallying above $4,400 — a two-month high — on rising odds that the Fed holds rates steady. The dollar firmed into the release.

The Nasdaq Composite and S&P 500 rose 0.54% and 0.26%, respectively, recovering from earlier losses on strong results from AI infrastructure and cloud names.

Super Micro Computer surged over 19%, while Dell, Teradyne, Seagate, and Arista Networks each gained more than 6%, extending the AI-hardware rally. Bloom Energy rose 13% after Nebius picked its fuel cells for a 300 MW AI data center, with Q2 revenue up 165% YoY to $1.07 billion.

India's CPI rose 4.45% YoY in July (vs. 4.38% in June), close to the 4.4% estimate. The FY27E inflation forecast is retained at 4.9% YoY, with a pickup to 5.0–5.8% expected in H2FY27E on adverse base effects, El Niño risk, and supply-chain pressures. With inflation contained, the RBI is expected to stay on hold through CY26E, with a possible 25bp hike in Q1CY27E — the Fed's path remains the key swing factor.

Brent Crude oil settled near $88/bbl as markets stayed sceptical of a quick resolution to shipping disruptions in the Strait of Hormuz, with US-Iran tensions keeping risk premiums elevated.

The rupee snapped a two-day losing streak yesterday, appreciating 10 paise to close at 95.33 as cooling crude prices offered relief after the recent rally. Likely central bank interventions and dollar inflows into debt and primary markets also supported the currency.

Nifty managed to reclaim intraday losses and close above these key moving averages, which is an encouraging sign for the bulls. Even after falling over 500 points from its recent peak of 24,774, Nifty remains above its key near-term averages, keeping the broader undertone bullish.

A low of 24,265 now will act as immediate support, followed by the psychologically important level of 24,000. On the upside, 24,630 and 24,750 are the key resistance zones to watch.

Indian equities are set for a mildly negative note on yesterday's CAS adjustments and mixed global cues.

Key Events

Japan PPI inflation misses expectations in July but surges to 3.5 yr peak
Japanese producer price index inflation grew slightly less than expected in July, but hit its strongest levels since April 2023 as high energy prices and import costs underpinned business expenses.

PPI rose 7.2% year-on-year in July, government data showed. The print missed expectations of 7.4% and cooled slightly from the 7.3% print in June, which was revised higher on Thursday. PPI grew 0.1% month-on-month, missing expectations of 0.6%.

Global EV sales rise in July as Europe offsets weakness in China and North America
Global demand for electric vehicles rose for a fifth consecutive month in July, driven by robust growth in Europe while sales weakened in China and North America, data from consultancy Benchmark Mineral Intelligence showed. Sales of battery-electric and plug-in hybrid vehicles rose 9% from a year ago to 1.85 million units in July, bringing year-to-date volumes to 11.5 million vehicles. Sales in Europe climbed 33% to 450,000 units, pushing year-to-date growth to 28%.

US Federal Budget deficit widens more than expected
The latest figures on the Federal Budget Balance reveal a significant widening of the deficit, with implications for the broader economy and financial markets. The actual budget deficit for the reported month was recorded at $432.0 billion, a figure that surpassed expectations and marked a notable increase compared to previous data.

Economists had anticipated a deficit of $348.3 billion, suggesting that the actual number exceeded forecasts by a substantial margin. This unexpected shortfall may prompt further discussions on fiscal policy and its impacts on the U.S. economy. The larger-than-expected deficit is likely to stir concerns about fiscal sustainability and could influence the U.S. dollar, as a lower-than-expected reading is typically perceived as bearish for the currency.

U.S. consumer price growth eases to 3.4% year-on-year in July
Annualized U.S. consumer price growth cooled slightly as expected in July, according to key data on Wednesday that will likely be closely watched by Federal Reserve policymakers tasked with calibrating interest rates. In the twelve months to July, the U.S. consumer price index eased to 3.4% from 3.5% in June, in line with projections. Month-on-month, headline CPI from the Labor Department rebounded as anticipated to 0.1%, after having slid by 0.4% previously.

Chart with Interesting Observations

Room to Rise: Historical Inflection in the Gold/S&P 500 Ratio

- The Gold-to-S&P 500 ratio serves as a vital cross-asset gauge for structural regime shifts, measuring the relative performance of tangible safe-haven assets against risk-on equities.
- Historically, macro shocks—such as the Great Depression of the 1930s, the stagflation era peaking in 1980, and the Great Financial Crisis of 2008—triggered aggressive spikes in the ratio as capital fled risk assets in favor of real wealth preservation.
- Despite the recent uptick, the ratio remains near the lower boundary of its multi-decade range, suggesting substantial structural runway for gold outperformance relative to US equities
