Equity benchmarks snap losing streak on Treasury buyback news

U.S. stock indexes broke a three-day slide as easing pressure in the bond market and strong retail earnings lifted sentiment. The S&P 500, Dow, and Nasdaq Composite each edged up roughly 0.2%.

Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent announced the department would more than double its buybacks of 10- to 30-year debt, to at least $4 billion per operation from $2 billion, over the next two months. The move came just after the 30-year yield hit a nearly 20-year high, sending it tumbling by almost 9 basis points as bond prices rose.

Investors read the buyback increase as easing near-term borrowing-cost pressure, more broadly, as a signal of Bessent's ongoing effort to bring down yields across maturities — countering recent worries over heavy AI-related borrowing, inflation, and the fiscal deficit.

The dollar index fell about 0.9% to 98.80, a three-month low, as safe-haven demand eased; the euro rose to $1.1674, its best level since late May.

Total U.S. public debt topped $40 trillion this week, up roughly $1 trillion in a few months, with the annual deficit projected to reach $2.1 trillion by fiscal year-end — underscoring the backdrop for the buyback move, which reduces near-term issuance pressure but does not address the underlying debt load.

Moderna led S&P 500 healthcare gainers after Phase 3 data showed its personalised mRNA cancer vaccine, developed with Merck, cut melanoma recurrence when paired with Keytruda. Merck shares hit a record high on the news; the sector as a whole closed at a record.

SK Hynix unveiled a $28–29 billion treasury share buyback — the largest in South Korean corporate history — sending its stock up roughly 6% and lifting peers SanDisk (+5%) and Micron (+3%).

Trump said the U.S. would launch what he called the "most crushing economic operation ever taken against any country" against Iran, threatening penalties on nations helping Tehran evade sanctions — extending the "Operation Economic Fury" pressure campaign running since April.

Brent crude rose for a fourth straight session to near $92 as talks with Iran remained stalled and Strait of Hormuz traffic stayed well below pre-war levels.

The rupee weakened by 7 paise to close at 95.75 per dollar, marking its lowest level in August. With a softening US Dollar Index and stable crude prices, the rupee is positioned to open with an upward bias.

From its recent peak, Nifty has corrected by approximately 750 points, retracing 61.8% of the rally from the July 24 low of 23,606 to the August 3 high of 24,774—a key level that often acts as a decision point for trend continuation or reversal.

The bullish structure remains intact only as long as the upward-sloping trendline connecting the April, June and July swing lows holds, with strong support clustered around 24,000. On the upside, immediate resistance has now shifted down to 24,300; a sustained close above this level would be the first sign of stabilisation and could pave the way for a meaningful pullback.

Indian equities are set for a positive start on conducive Global cues.

Key Events

China keeps benchmark lending rates unchanged for 15th straight month in Aug

China kept its benchmark lending rates unchanged for a 15th consecutive month in August, as policymakers held off on further monetary easing despite signs of renewed weakness in domestic demand. The People's Bank of China (PBOC) kept the one-year loan prime rate (LPR) at 3.00% and the five-year LPR at 3.50%, matching market expectations.

Australia jobless rate rises to 4.5% as hiring unexpectedly falls in July

Australia's unemployment rate rose to 4.5% in July, exceeding expectations and pointing to a sharper-than-expected weakening in the labor market ahead of the Reserve Bank of Australia's September policy meeting.

Employment fell by 15,800 jobs in July, sharply missing forecasts for an 11,700 increase and reversing most of June's 76,300 gain. The unemployment rate rose from 4.4% in June and also came in above the 4.4% forecast, while the participation rate held at 66.9%, slightly below June's 67%.

Japan trade deficit grows slightly less than expected in July, exports surge

Japan clocked a slightly smaller-than-expected trade deficit in July as exports grew more than expected on robust overseas demand. Japan posted a trade deficit of 634.58 billion yen ($4.01 billion), data from the Ministry of Finance showed. The print was slightly lower than expectations for a 680.0 billion yen deficit, but widened from a 409.9 billion deficit in the prior month.

UK July inflation hits four-month high as energy costs surge

British consumer price inflation accelerated to a four-month high of 2.9% in the 12 months to July, up from 2.6% in June, as a jump in household energy bills drove the sharpest rise in gas prices since October 2022, official data showed on Wednesday, keeping the Bank of England on course to hold interest rates steady next month. The reading matched the consensus forecast and was only marginally above the BoE's own July projection of 2.8%, according to analysts.

Eurozone consumer prices grow by 2.9% year-on-year in July - Eurostat

Eurozone consumer prices grew by 2.9% in the twelve months to July, slightly faster than 2.8% in the preceding month, according to data from Eurostat on Wednesday confirming a preliminary estimate. Month-on-month, the headline consumer price index rose by 0.2% last month. An EU-harmonized underlying reading stripping out volatile items like food and fuel stood at 2.2% year-on-year and 0.0% on a monthly basis.

Chart with Interesting Observations

China's Economy Shows Fresh Signs of a Slowdown

- China's economy is showing fresh signs of a slowdown, with net new loans falling by $50.4 billion in July—the third decline of its kind in more than two decades and more than triple what had forecast. Lending to the real economy was even weaker, recording $87.5 billion in net repayments, the largest monthly decline in data going back to 2002.
- While aggregate financing, a broader measure of total credit, still increased by $207.7 billion, nearly all of the growth came from $192.9 billion in government bond sales rather than organic private-sector lending. The data suggest Chinese households and businesses are increasingly choosing to pay down debt instead of taking on new loans—a clear indication of weakening confidence in the economic outlook.
